Jesus, the Way

All of us had some experience of getting lost and having to ask for directions. We have approached a stranger and asked, 'How do I get to such and such a place?' There are three common responses. The person says: 'Sorry. I can't help you. I'm a stranger around here.' Needless to say, that's no help to us. Or the person proceeds to give us a set of complicated directions that leaves us totally confused. That's not much help either. Or we might be lucky enough to meet a kind person who says, 'I know where it is. But it's a bit complicated. I'll tell you what. Just follow me and I'll take you there.' Here the person is not just content just to give us directions and leave us to it. Here is a person who is willing to be our guide. It's a tonic to meet someone like that. The way to God is the most important way of all. It is a way that has baffled many. At the Last Supper the apostle, Thomas, asked Jesus. 'Show us the Father.' The most important thing in the life of Jesus was his relationship with the Father. So Jesus knew the way to the Father. But he might have given Thomas a set of complicated directions. He didn't. He did something better. He said, 'I am the way.' And he invites us to follow him. If we follow him we will have a star that will not betray us, and a compass that will not lie to us. He will lead us to the Father's house. The joy of the one who knows he has set the compass of his life on the right path is a recurrent theme in the Bible. What does following Jesus involve? It involves following his way. In the Bible the word 'way' is often used in a metaphorical sense. Often it designates a way of life and conduct. The early Christians called themselves followers of the Way. By 'way' they meant a Christian way of life. At the Last Supper Jesus told the apostles that he was 'going away'. They rightly understood 'going away' to mean that he was going to die. On hearing this they were overcome with sadness. But Jesus didn't speak of death as life ending. He spoke of death and going to the Father. God is the destination of our earthly journey. To die is to go to God and to go to God is to go home. Meanwhile in the Church we have a spiritual home, built on foundation stone of Christ (Second Reading). Here we have brothers and sisters who accompany us on our journey to that other home, our heavenly one. Sadly, there are those who have left the Church or the Christian faith, and who have travelled far, searching for what they left behind.
